Hon. Warren A. Arnold Dies at Westerly

After Eleven Days' Illness—John Bergen's Relatives Claim $10,000 Damages from Railroad Co.—Knife Flourished in Quarrel Over Apples—H. T. S. Club in Camp at Pleasant View.

Hon. Warren O. Arnold of Chepachet, R. I., who with his brother, Senator Louis W. Arnold, owned and managed the mill of the Westerly Woolen company, died in the Dixie house just before five o'clock Friday morning. Eleven days ago he was taken suddenly ill soon after reaching the hotel from his regular visit to the T. B. club, where he usually spent evenings during his regular stay of four days each week in Westerly. Physicians were summoned and it was evident that Mr. Arnold was suffering from an acute attack of Bright's disease which rendered him unconscious. Within twenty-four hours thereafter he was stricken with paralysis of the right side.

At intervals he was able to recognize his wife, his brother and intimate friends, but from the beginning of his illness there was no hope of recovery. Services will be held here Sunday afternoon and on Monday the body will be taken to Chepachet and buried in the family plot at Coverts Hill.

Warren O. Arnold was the son of Otho Whitman and Caroline Jones, nee Arnold, and was born June 2, 1839, in Coventry, R. I., and remained there until he was seven years of age. From 1847 to 1852 he lived in Voluntown and Sterling, in the latter year removing to Chepachet, R. I. At the age of seven he became an operator in a cotton mill, and in 1855 he moved to Chepachet, where he was employed in a store until 1864. From Mapleville he moved to Chepachet, where he entered the firm of G. B. Whipple & company, owners of a cotton wool mill. After the death of the senior partner, Mr. Arnold formed a partnership with Daniel S. Whipple, who sold out his interest to Horace A. Kimball, the new firm of Kimball & Arnold devoting their attention from 1865 to 1868 to the manufacture of woolen goods.

Then the firm dissolved and in 1869 Mr. Arnold became associated with the firm of F. A. White & company, woolen goods manufacturers of Chepachet and Westerly. In 1880, Mr. White died and the firm was dissolved. Mr. Arnold, disposing of his Chepachet interest, bought out the entire interest of the late firm in Westerly and associated himself with his brother, Senator Louis

W. Arnold, under the name of the Westerly Woolen company, continuing in that business until his death. The large business experience as a manufacturer and successful management of Warren O. Arnold, his financial standing, his common sense and practical ideas and methods, and his general high standing as a citizen made him an available republican candidate for representative in congress from the Second Rhode Island district. He was nominated on the first ballot at a convention held in Pawtucket, Oct. 13, 1887. He served in the Fifty-fifth and Fifty-fourth congresses, and was on the committee on banking. In 1890 he was elected to the House of Representatives as a congressman from Rhode Island newspaper said.

Mr. Arnold was a broad-minded, shrewd and successful business man, had clear and positive convictions, is capable of a thorough mastery of every subject, abhorred sham, and is without a man of sterling integrity, qualities which never long go unrecognized and are a credit to the community. The average politician can boast. Were all our legislative men of that stamp a purification of the political atmosphere would be the result.

Mr. Arnold married Oct. 30, 1862, Miss Mary Owen, who survives him. He had no children. His only brother, Senator Louis W. Arnold and a sister, Mrs. Eliza Eddy of Westerly.

John Bergen, a private of the Eighty-eighth company, Coast Artillery corps, stationed at Fort Mansfield, on leaving from his home in Brooklyn, fell from the steps of a car at the Westerly station, May 25, 1898, before the train came to a final standstill. The wheels of the car ran over both legs and the soldier was removed to the baggage room where he was attended by Drs. Scammon and May. By orders from Fort Mansfield, young Bergen was not removed from the baggage room until an army wagon arrived and started with him to the fort, three hours after the injury was done, and Bergen died a few minutes after reaching the military hospital.

The mother and sister of Bergen have instituted suit against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company to recover damages of $10,000 claiming that death was due to injuries received by being run over by the car and that the company was responsible for the death through carelessness and neglect. It is understood that while the railroad company does not admit any responsibility in the fatality, there was a willingness on the part of the company to recompense the family for any pecuniary loss in connection with the medical attendance and funeral, but this was not satisfactory to the relatives of Bergen, and the suit in damages has resulted. The case will be tried in New York.

Attorney M. J. Quill, Jr., of New York, representing the railroad company, is in Westerly, gathering facts in connection with the fatality and in view of the seriousness of the accident the information to be used in connection with the preparation of the defense in the case.

Joseph Abdallah, a Syrian fruit peddler, alleges that he was assaulted by Frank Costanzo in Little Italy, Friday morning and arrest and prosecution will be the result. Abdallah says he sold Costanzo a partially filled barrel of apples, and that when he was carrying the apples into the house Costanzo struck him because the barrel was not full of apples. Abdallah was struck in the face by the apples. Costanzo was about to use a knife on him when Police Constable Joseph Grills, who is the witness in the case, interfered, holding Abdallah and warning Costanzo not to use the knife. Abdallah having made futile attempt to have Grills arrest Costanzo, filed complaint with Chief Bransfield, and warrant for the arrest of Costanzo was issued Friday night.

Local Laconies.
Martha B. Pierce has sold a tract of land near Pierce street to Natale Benvenuto.

A number assembled in Wilcox park, April Fool's Day, to see the local aristocrat and his airship.

For the first time in two months Westerly is free from diphtheria. Health Officer Stanton lifted the last quarantine Friday morning.

Walter W. Hoxie, who has market at Watch Hill in the summer season, sustained a slight stroke of paralysis while at his home in Beach street, Friday afternoon. Burial was at River Bend.

The eight beds in the Westerly sanitarium are occupied by patients, and more are soon to be provided. It is indeed that there was need for such an institution in Westerly.

Only residents of Rhode Island will be granted license to fish for lobsters in the waters of the state. Greek fishermen at Newport are to test the constitutionality of the law.

At the meeting of the Men's club of Calvary Baptist church, Friday evening, Rev. Joseph L. Peacock, librarian of the Westerly Public Library, delivered an address on What the Public Ought to Expect from a Library.

Rev. F. C. Jones of Calvary Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Joseph L. Peacock, former pastor, officiated at the funeral service for Sister T. North at his late home in Spring street, Friday afternoon. Burial was at River Bend.
